

Company Backgrounder

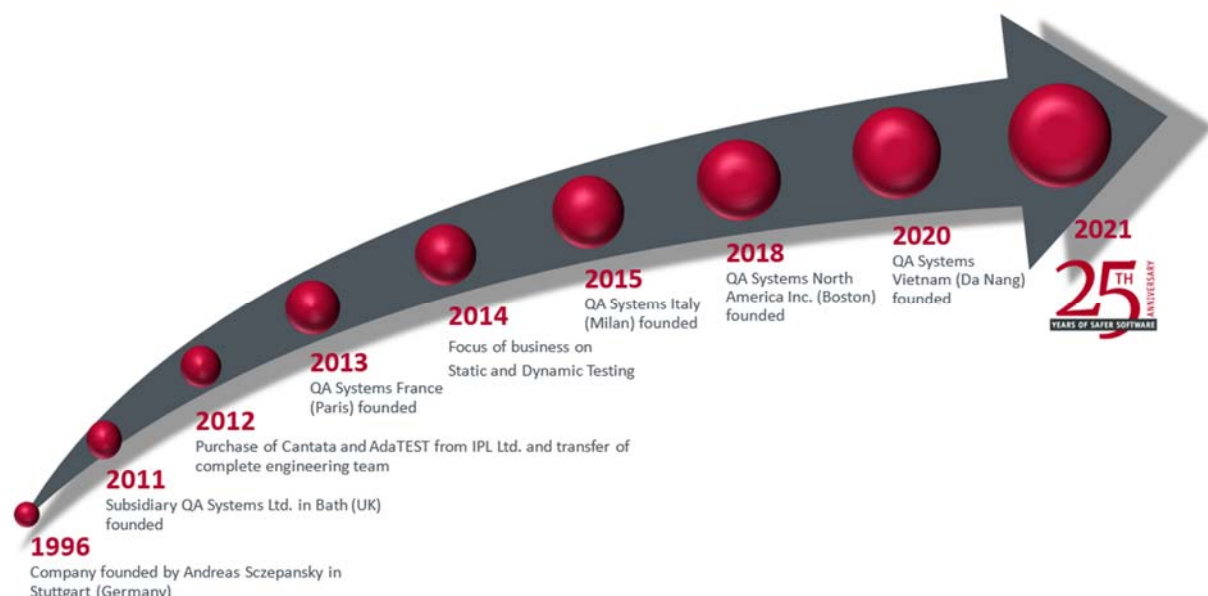

QA Systems was founded by CEO Andreas Szczepansky in 1996, as a reseller of various software testing tools for C & C++ developers in Germany, Austria and Switzerland. Over the last 25 years the company has developed a deep expertise in helping our customers achieve quality embedded software systems and compliance with international software safety standards.

For the last decade QA Systems has been developing its own unit and integration testing tools. The company's flagship tool CANTATA is independently certified by SGS-TÜV for use at the highest integrity level of safety related software development for all major safety standards (ISO 26262, IEC 61508, IEC 62304, EN 50128 & EN 50657, and IEC 60880), and qualifiable for standards such as DO-178C. In static code analysis, the company now offers its QA-MISRA tool for fast safety and security critical coding standards compliance. In addition to our static analysis and software testing tools, the QA Systems Academy shares our know-how and expertise with engineers from around the world.

QA Systems operates directly across the world and through a global reseller network. QA Systems has over 350 blue-chip customers, who span the full range of safety related and business critical industries.

Software Quality is QA Systems' driving force. Its tools and services enable organizations worldwide to develop tested high-quality software, which meets the stringent demands of industry safety standards and high customer expectations. Our drive for software quality is what makes us...
